To my colleagues at Baruch School:

We have just finished a somewhat difficult year, one that was complicated by many changes of various sorts: (1) in our physical plant; (2) in our educational standards; and (3) in the work-load of our faculty members.

The first of these items is well on the way to completion, while the last has just passed the blueprint stage and will go into partial effect next September. A good start has been made toward implementing the second change, a long-range proposition, and probably the most important of those attempted in recent years.

We all know that improvement in our educational standards cannot be accomplished merely by a numerical increase in the extent of homework assignments, the number of formal quizzes, the length of term papers or reports, etc. Rather must we strive to use our respective disciplines to develop in our students the type of training that can be applied under varying circumstances to any kind of business situation. The ability to analyze business problems clearly and thoroughly, to marshal all the relevant facts, to reason both logically and imaginatively, and to formulate judgments that will withstand the test of time -- all comprise the basic foundation of a truly collegiate education for future business leaders, one that is worthy of the imprimatur of a great institution of higher learning.

To this end, we must do everything possible to help our students achieve such a broad, transferable type of professional training, instead of permitting them merely to acquire a narrow, limited collection of strictly vocational skills. The attainment of this goal requires indefatigable preparatory groundwork and consummate teaching skill, but the result is fully worthy of the effort involved. It is my hope that, in the years to come, we shall be able to look back upon this project as one of our greatest accomplishments.

I wish for each of you a happy and restful summer!

Sincerely,
EMANUEL SAXE
Dean

HOUSING

It has come to the attention of this office that some members of the Faculty are interested in acquiring living accommodations in the immediate vicinity of the school. Would those people who are interested in obtaining such accommodations contact the Dean's Office. It may well be that if there is sufficient interest in this matter, concerted efforts might be made to find some avenue wherein the college can be of real assistance to its faculty members in this regard.
SOCIAL SECURITY

Mr. HAROLD A. SCHAEFER, District Manager of the Social Security Administration here in the City of New York, provided this office with an illustrative listing of typical questions asked by teachers and the answers to these questions provided by his office. The following questions and answers from his list might be of interest to you:

Q. I am a teacher and will be 65 in May. I am covered under social security and receive over $4,200 in salary on a 12-month basis. However, I do not work during the summer months. Am I entitled to receive the checks for June, July and August?

A. The Social Security Law provides that benefits are payable to any wage earner who has reached retirement age for any month in which his earnings are $100.00 or less. It is our understanding that school employees receive salary payments on a 12-month basis even though the employees do not work during the summer months. Such salary payments represent earnings for services previously rendered in the 9- or 10-month school year. Therefore, school employees who do not work during the summer for the school or who do not earn over $100.00 per month from other employment are eligible to receive social security payments for these months.

Q. I have been working under social security for four years. Is there any way I can find out if all my earnings are in fact recorded under my name and number?

A. Yes, indeed, there is. Your social security office can furnish you with a post-card form numbered 7004 and entitled "Wage Statement Request." Fill it out, put a stamp on it and drop it in the mailbox. Within a few days you will receive a confidential report of the amount of earnings credited to your account. While you have the right to get a statement once a year, one every three years is sufficient to fully protect your account.

ELECTRICAL CONVERSION WORK

The conversion of the building's electrical system from DC to AC continues to make progress. As this goes to press, the top four floors of the building have been converted and are being readied for painting. It is hoped that the Faculty will return in the Fall to find the bulk of the conversion work completed.
The Library Department requests members of the teaching staffs of the Summer 1959 Session and the Fall 1959-60 Session to submit the required and suggested readings needed for their courses as soon as possible.

Those members of the Baruch School family who wish to receive the current book accessions listing from the Cohen Library at the Main Center can do so by calling the Library office at the Baruch School, Ext. 57, and requesting that their names be added to the mailing list.

DEPARTMENTAL EXECUTIVES MEETING

On April 9th, Dean Saxe held the Second Luncheon Meeting of Departmental Executives of the Baruch School of this semester. The various representatives of the faculty reported to the group their progress to date toward raising educational standards in their respective departments. During the course of the meeting Dean Saxe informed the group that large lecture sections will be introduced in Accounting 101, Business Administration 103 and 110, and Law 101. It was also noted that the Economics Department will operate on reduced programs but with larger class sizes. It was also indicated that the English Department will be given an 8-hour allowance to provide for instructional work in the area of Remedial English. There was considerable interchange of information as to the various ways in which individual departments were attacking the problem of raising educational standards here at the Baruch School.

HONORS CONVOCATION

In view of the many outstanding awards which City College students have won, such as Woodrow Wilson Fellowships, National Science Foundation Fellowships, memberships in Phi Beta Kappa, Beta Gamma Sigma, etc., the College held an "Honors Convocation" to give formal recognition to these young men and women for their meritorious achievements.

The convocation was held in the Aronow Auditorium in the Finley Center on May 20th at 2:30 P.M. President Gallagher presided. Mr. Gustave G. Rosenberg, Chairman of the Board of Higher Education, gave a short address. The individual groups of students were presented briefly by a sponsoring member of the College community. Dean Samuel Thomas introduced the Baruch School delegation of student award winners.

The parents and families of the students were invited to the convocation and the reception which followed in the Finley Center.

$1,000 AWARD FOR SPEECH OR ARTICLE

Awards of $1,000 each for the three best speeches or articles on public leadership have recently been established by The Fund for Adult Education. The prize-winning articles and speeches will eventually be published in a single volume either by the Fund or commercially. Awards, to be given in each of the years 1959 and 1960, are designed to generate the best thinking on the nature of public leadership and on ways in which more adequate education can be provided to help prepare American leadership on every level of social, economic and political organization to serve the general welfare.

For purposes of the Awards, the term "leadership" encompasses the whole range of positions in which executive decisions and executive actions have public consequences. It would include, for example, elected and appointed executives in federal, state and municipal governments, corporation executives, members of boards of directors of national organizations, school board members and college trustees, foundation officials, labor leaders, leaders of political parties, executives serving abroad, either in governmental or private positions, et cetera. On the other hand, the term "leadership" in the Award context, excludes from consideration leadership whose force is primarily intellectual, spiritual or artistic.

To be considered for an Award, a copy of the talk and a description of the occasion on which it was delivered should be sent to the Office of Information, The Fund for Adult Education. An individual wishing to submit an article for consideration for an Award must provide the Office of Information with the name of the publication in which the article appeared and when.

TAX TIPS

Mr. JOSHUA WACHTEL, Accountancy, has prepared a report on the New York State income tax law for the readers of the Faculty Staff Newsletter. The material, entitled "Notes on the New York State Estimated Personal Income Tax Return" is attached to this Newsletter as an appendix.
NOTES ON THE NEW YORK STATE ESTIMATED PERSONAL INCOME TAX RETURN

As a general statement of purpose, the declaration and payment of estimated income tax may be considered a means by which New York State (following the federal tax pattern) collects income tax which it does not receive currently through withholding. Individuals involved are required to make estimates of their expected income and deductions for the year and then compute the tax due on the net amount, after deduction of exemptions. Filing a declaration of estimated tax and making payment thereof does not excuse one from filing a regular income tax return when it is due.

Some of the more salient features of the New York State estimated income tax procedure are indicated in the following tabulation:

1. Who must file an estimated tax return?

   a. A taxpayer with combined net capital gains and gross income from sources other than wages which can reasonably be expected to exceed (a) $600 for each exemption, plus (b) $400.

   b. A taxpayer who is unmarried, or married and not eligible to file a joint declaration, and has combined net capital gains and gross income from all sources which can reasonably be expected to exceed $5,000.

   c. A taxpayer who is married and eligible to file a joint declaration and who, with his spouse, has aggregate net capital gains and gross income from all sources which can reasonably be expected to exceed $10,000.

   d. In the case of a nonresident, only income from sources within the state is considered in determining if a declaration is required.

      * * * * *

Husbands and wives may file joint declarations or separate ones. The method employed for filing the declaration has no effect upon the manner in which they file their final returns.

2. When must the estimated tax return be filed?

For 1959, only, the first declaration is due June 15, 1959, if the requirements for filing are met before June 2, 1959. Otherwise, the following schedule is followed:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Requirements first Met</th>
<th>To be filed on or Before</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>After</td>
<td>Before</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>June 15</td>
<td>Sept. 2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sept. 1</td>
<td>Jan. 1</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
If a calendar-year taxpayer first meets the requirement for filing a declaration after September 1, 1959, a final return may be filed without penalty on or before January 31, 1960, and the tax paid as shown thereon. This would also constitute the filing of the declaration which would have been due on January 15, 1960. (In addition a person whose estimated tax is $40 or less may file the declaration by January 15 of the succeeding year).

3. When must payment of estimated tax be made?

For 1959, only, one-half is payable on June 15, 1959, and one-quarter each by September 15, 1959, and January 15, 1960.

4. How is an estimated tax return amended?

This may be done at any time between installment dates by filing an amended return.

5. May one obtain an extension of time for filing an estimated tax return?

Reasonable extensions of time, not to exceed six months, may be obtained by application to the appropriate authorities.

6. Are there penalties for failure to pay the estimated tax on time?

A charge of 6% per annum is made where the taxpayer underpays his estimated tax. The penalty is computed for each installment separately, and is based on the difference between the amount actually paid and the amount that would have been paid if the estimated tax were 70% of the amount shown on the final return.

No penalty for underpayment will apply where the 1959 estimated tax paid equals the 1957 tax liability computed on the basis of the new 1959 exemptions.

In the computation of the New York State estimated tax return, the federal estimated net income may be used as a guide. There are, however, certain important differences in the concept of net income that have to be considered. Some of the more significant ones are itemized below:

A. Income

1. Compensation - meals and lodging.
   Where such emoluments have a cash value in that they reduce the living expenses of the employee, they constitute income.
   The contract of employment, either expressly or by implication, must provide for such meals or lodging.
