Martin S. Begun, a former Lenox Hill Democratic Club District Leader, has been a political activist most of his life. He has been a member of many committees and been appointed by city officials from both parties.

He now serves as senior Associate Dean of the NYU School of Medicine and Vice President (External Affairs) of New York University Medical Center. Dean Begun serves as liaison to government officials on the city, state and federal level. In addition, he oversees the public affairs and alumni relations offices of NYU Medical Center and School of Medicine.

Until 1994, Dean Begun also served the City of New York for 18 years as Chairman of the Community Services Board of the city's Department of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Alcoholism Services. He continues to sit on the boards of the Executive Committee of the Associated Medical Schools of New York, and, by appointment of the Governor of New York State, on the Battery Park City Authority. A long-time advocate for compassionate care for the homeless mentally ill, Martin Begun often advises prominent public figures on the subjects of health care, public health, community relations and jewish affairs.

In July of 1995, Martin Begun assumed the presidency of the Jewish Community Relations Council of New York ("JCRC"), a representative organization encompassing over 60 major civic, communal, educational and religious groups within New York City's diverse Jewish community.
