C. Research in progress.

Casey, John, "Advocacy by NY nonprofits."

With a grant from the Robert Sterling Clark Foundation I am currently researching and writing three case studies on advocacy by New York City nonprofits in the areas of solid waste management, foster care and education funding. The material from the document analysis and interviews used to write the cases will also be used as the basis for academic articles on advocacy. A first article, provisionally titled Flatiron Advocacy will analyze the work of the numerous nonprofit advocacy organizations that are headquartered within 30 blocks of the Flatiron Building at 23rd and Broadway. A journal article will be drafted in early 2011.

Casey, John, "Comparative/International nonprofits."

I recently taught a new course I developed on The Management of International Nonprofits for the Baruch School of Public Affairs. I anticipate that my teaching and other research/exchange work on international nonprofit issues will lead to a number of publications and hopefully a new book, which I have already provisionally titled, The Nonprofit Globe. I am currently active in the international arena in the following areas:

- I was part of a successful grant application to the Canadian Government to create a North American Mobility Program research network on future directions in nonprofits. The application was submitted on behalf of el Colegio Mexiquense, Carleton University Canada and Baruch College. El Colegio, the lead institution hosted the first meeting in March 2010. As a result of that collaboration, a successful proposal was submitted to the US, Canadian and Mexican governments for a more extensive student and faculty mobility project
- On my frequent visits to Australia, I maintain contacts with both the Centre for Australian Community Organizations and Management at the University of Technology, Sydney and the Center for Social Impact at the University of NSW, and usually give guest lectures and participate in seminars at the two institutions.
- The paper I presented at the 2009 ARNOVA conference was part of a three-country comparative panel on government-nonprofit relations organized by Peter Elson of Mount Royal University, Canada. The third panelist was Jeremy Kendall of the University of Kent, UK. As a result of that paper I was invited by Deena White, Université de Montréal to present a similar paper as part of an international comparative colloquy at the International Society of Third Sector Research (ISTR) conference in Istanbul in July 2010. I could not attend that conference, but will continue to work with Deena on a planned publication that compares government-nonprofit relations in different countries.

- I maintain close contacts in Barcelona and in April 2010 gave two lectures there on nonprofit issues.

Casey, John, "Deliberate relations between governments and nonprofits in the U.S."

Currently surveying and analyzing the structures and processes used to strengthen government-nonprofit relations in 10 states and at federal level. Ten representative states were chosen and preliminary survey has been completed. A PSC-CUNY 40 Award was recently granted to continue this work. A first conference paper on the preliminary results of the research was presented at the Association for Research on Nonprofit Organizations and Voluntary Action (ARNOVA) conference in November 2009. Further in-depth survey work and interviews will be carried out in 2010. An expanded version of the ARNOVA conference paper will be submitted to journals in late 2010.

Casey, John, "Impact of Economic Crisis on the Third Sector."

I have been invited to be part of an international working group that currently includes academics from Spain, UK, Chile, Japan, and Portugal that will produce a report that compares the impact of the economic crisis on the third sector (nonprofits) around the world. The project is funded by the EU. As of July 2010, I am negotiating with the lead partner, Prof Carmen Parra of the Universidad Abat Oliba in Barcelona to provide funding to hire a research assistant to assist with a contribution on the situation in the US.

Casey, John, Martinez, "Policing the World".

I am currently working with a co-author, Professor Roser Martinez of the Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona, to develop a Spanish-language version of my recently published book. The new version will not be simply a translation of the current book; instead, I will work with the co-author to adapt the book to reflect a Spanish/Continental European perspective on policing.
