Museum Exhibits

Thomas Phillips & Son Monuments - New Haven Stone Carvers, 1848-1988 - New Haven Colony Historical Society, New Haven, CT, Fall 1998.

This exhibition of photographs, drawings, tools, and sculpture was mounted in connection with the bicentennial of New Haven's historic Grove Street Cemetery. The Phillips collection, now housed at the historical society, is the largest extant trove of material on an American monument firm.

Waterworks - Celebrating 125 Years of New Haven's Public Water Supply - Eli Whitney Museum, Hamden, CT, 1986

Sponsored by the South Central Connecticut Regional Water Authority, this exhibition of photographs, documents, and artifacts documented the establishment and development of New Haven's public water supply.

Hartford - A City Built on Risk - Old State House, Hartford, CT, Summer 1986.

This exhibit, co-curated with Harry Keiner Travelers Insurance Company Archivist, explored the evolution of the insurance industry and its significance in Hartford's history.

Windows on the Works - Industry on the Eli Whitney Site - Permanent Exhibit, Eli Whitney Museum, Hamden, CT, installed 1984.

This exhibit, co-curated with Karyl Lee Kibler and Sara Buie, interpreted the history of one of New England's most important historic industrial sites. Enterprises operated on the site included pioneer Eli Whitney's arms factory (1798-1888), the New Haven's first waterworks (established by Eli Whitney, Jr. in 1860), and the industrial research laboratory of inventor J. A. Heany.

The Good Old Summertime - Guilford in the 1890s - Guilford Library, Guilford, CT, Summer 1983.

This exhibit of rare photographs from private collections and vintage photographic equipment offered unique views of families, summer homes, and house interiors.
